Four more were taken to the reformatory, being under age. They were Nick Quarles, Lewis Bowles, A. L. Carter and John Frazier. They go for short terms for chicken stealing and other forms of larceny.

Judge Reed granted a new trial to C. B. Pitzer and Bob Johns, the two white men convicted of breaking into Atkinson's store at Bluff Springs. They executed bond and were released from jail.

This is the last week of the present term of Circuit court, with much equity and common law business on the docket.

Judge Carl Henderson, of the Princeton district, is holding court this week as special Judge, during the inability of Judge Hanberry to preside. The grand jury reassembled yesterday for a brief final session.

They were examined by Attorneys S. Y. Trimble and S. Walton Forgy. Mr. Lackey was for six years deputy circuit clerk. Mr. King is the court stenographer and Mr. Cunningham is at present a deputy under Circuit Clerk Clark. All are bright and promising young men who are destined to achieve success in their chosen profession.

Mr. L. B. Castile was also admitted to the bar Saturday.

In Hospital.

Mr. Robt. A. Cook, of the Board of Control, underwent a minor operation at the Stuart Hospital Saturday.

VICTIM OF PARALYSIS

Mr. James W. Carloss Succumbs After Suffering For Several Years.

James W. Carloss, a well known citizen of this city, died Friday night at his home on East Eighteenth street. Mr. Carloss suffered a stroke of paralysis several years ago, since which time he had been practically an invalid. Recently his decline had been rapid and his demise was not unexpected. He was in his 76th year.

The deceased was a native of Trigg county, but had resided in this country nearly all of his life and was engaged in farming in South Christian for a number of years. Some years ago he moved to this city.

Mr. Carloss was a man of wide acquaintance and was popular with every one. He was a Past Master of two Masonic lodges and one of the best informed Masons in Western Kentucky. He had served in nearly every official capacity in the order and could recite the entire ritual from memory. He had been a member of the Baptist church for many years.

His wife and five children survive. The children are: J. H. and Will Carloss, of this city; Mrs. Mattie Miles, of near Lafayette; Miss Fannie Carloss, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Anna Nance, of Graves county.

The interment took place Saturday afternoon in Riverside cemetery. The Masons had charge of the services.

$400,000 BOND ISSUE CARRIES

Good Roads Advocates Win Over Opposition by Majority of 379.

Morganfield, Ky., April 3.—Interest was at fever heat all over Union county Saturday over the vote on issuing bonds for $400,000 for county road building. A much larger vote was polled in the race for Governor, and both sides were active in getting voters to the polls, giving free auto rides. The bond issue carried by a majority of 379.

COOPER'S NEW FIELD.

Elkton, Ky., April 3.—At a largely attended meeting of the Todd County Good Roads Association here Saturday a committee, composed of one man from each magisterial district of the county, was named for the purpose of conferring and arranging satisfactory details for the expenditure of the $190,000 that will be realized in the event the bond issue carries. R. E. Cooper, of Hopkinsville, was the principal speaker.

GOOD STUNTS PULLED OFF

Several Orators, Some Brand New Ones, Entertain an Avalon Crowd.

The H. B. M. A. round-table at the Avalon Friday night brought together sixty or more congenial spirits who listened to good speeches until 10:30 o'clock and between times sipped iced grape juice and ate Garrison ice cream of the finest quality. Tom Metcalfe, as usual, decorated everybody present with carnations and the smokers reveled in the best of cigars.

President J. O. Cook introduced Chas. M. Meacham as official starter and for two hours he kept the floor pretty well occupied with orators and fun provokers.

Rev. J. N. Jessup, Rev. Lewis Powell, L. K. Wood, Dr. Frank Bassett, T. C. Underwood, Col. W. R. Howell, Jno. A. Whittaker and R. E. Cooper performed in regular order and each in a highly satisfactory manner, though none of the orators knew their subjects until they were called on. Jokes were told, eloquence indulged in, poetry quoted and chunks of wisdom handed out. There were other orators present, but they were saved for next time.

OCTOGENARIAN PASSES AWAY

T. G. Cochran Dies at Home of Son in Oak Grove, Aged, 86.

His funeral services were held at the residence of Mr. P. C. Sallee, Oak Grove, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and the remains were brought here and interred in Riverside Cemetery.

NIGHTLY RAIDS BY ZEPPELINS

Big German Dirigibles Continue Their Attacks on British Isles.

3 NIGHTS IN SUCCESSION

Berlin Tells of Raids and Reports the Loss of the L-15.

London, April 3.—The coast of Scotland and the northern and southeastern counties of England were attacked by Zeppelins Sunday night, according to an official announcement by the secretary of war. The announcement says:

A Zeppelin raid took place Sunday night when the coast of Scotland and the northern and southeastern counties of England were attacked.

Bombs were dropped at various places. No details are available.

At least sixteen persons were killed and about 100 others injured by the explosion of bombs dropped in another raid of Zeppelin dirigible balloons over the northeast coast of England Saturday night.

The official version of the raid says:

Two airships approached the northeast coast Saturday night. Only one crossed the coast. The other turned back.

For the present we know that sixteen persons were killed and about 100 injured.

Eight dwelling houses were demolished and a serious fire was caused in a French polishing shop.

A correspondent in a northeast coast town says a Zeppelin dropped fourteen explosive and seven incendiary bombs there Saturday night. Ten men, three women and three children were killed and twenty-five persons were seriously injured. In addition, about eighty others received minor injuries.

A tram car inspector was killed and a woman tram conductor suffered the loss of a leg. Several houses were wrecked in one street. One house was demolished, but the family of five escaped without injury.

The total casualties reported in the Zeppelin raid on the night of March 31-April 1 now amount to 43 killed and 66 injured. Nearly 200 explosives and incendiary bombs were dropped.

A Baptist chapel, three dwelling houses and two cottages were demolished. A town hall, four dwelling houses, thirty-five cottages and a tram car shed were partly wrecked. There was no military damage.

With the exception of the big air raid of January 31 when the casualties were sixty-seven persons killed and 117 injured, the Zeppelin raids of Friday and Saturday nights caused greater loss of life than any previous aerial attack this year. No details are yet available regarding Sunday night's raid.

The total casualties for Friday and Saturday nights, according to an official report, were 57 persons killed and 166 wounded.

As some compensation for the sacrifice of life, however, the British public finds satisfaction in practical proof afforded of a great improvement in the defensive methods dealing with aerial incursions. For the first time since the inception of this method of warfare on the British coast, not only has one raiding Zeppelin been brought down and its crew taken prisoners, but the official report recounts an exciting aerial fight between a Zeppelin and a British airman, Lieut. Brandon, who, mounting to a height of 9,000 feet, flew over the raider and dropped several bombs on it with effect.

The machine of Lieut. Brandon was hit several times by machine gun bullets from the Zeppelin.

Deaths of Rabies.

Louisville, March 29.—Fred Schieemann, Jr., 5 years old, died of hydrocephalus this afternoon at the home of his parents. The child was slightly bitten February 29, and the Pasteur treatment was neglected.

Four hundred American cavalrymen, under the command of Col. George A. Dodd, fell on Villa's force of 500 men March 29, scattering them in many directions, and driving the bandit chief, wounded and crippled, to seek a hiding place in the mountains. Villa was hurried from danger in a carriage. For seventeen hours the veteran colonel, with his picked troopers of the Seventh and Tenth cavalry, drove down the valley of the Santa Maria river. At the end of a fifty-five mile ride they fell upon the unsuspecting Villa camp, where five hundred bandits were celebrating the massacre of 172 Carranza soldiers two days previously at Guerrero.

Villa, shot through the leg, and with one hip shattered, was hurried from the scene, barely in time to escape the onslaught of the Americans. The bandits made a brief but hopeless stand before a charge of Col. Dodd and his troopers. Then they broke and fled, leaving thirty-one dead on the field, including their commander, Gen. Eliseo Hernandez. Two machine guns, a number of horses, rifles, ammunition and equipment fell into the hands of the Americans.

Among the known wounded is Pablo Lopez, Villa's lieutenant in the Columbus raid. The American casualties were four privates wounded.

The American soldiers did not linger on the field of victory. For five hours they drove the enemy before them into the wilderness of mountain peak, desert and canyon, where roads, or even trails, are unknown, and where a misstep means death to horse and rider. They halted only after the chase had led them ten miles and the fugitives were scattered into little bands of half a dozen men each.

The Republicans are basing their hope of controlling the next Senate on the hope that they will gain one Senator in each of these States: Maine, New York, New Jersey, West Virginia, Ohio, Montana, Nevada, Nebraska, and two in Indiana, making ten in all. They class Maryland and Arizona as doubtful and dispute the claim that the Republicans will lose a Senator in North Dakota.

The Dean of Women in the co-ed department of the Indiana University has established a censorship on the clothes worn by the girls. They must comply with rigid specifications as to lowness of neck and shortness of skirt. Some have had to be blue-penciled.

FARM ANIMALS

AVOID SPREAD OF INFECTION

Thorough Disinfection is Essential to and Efficient in Preventing Contagion.

In any outbreak of infectious disease among animals thorough disinfection of the premises is essential to preventing the spread of the contagion. Certain substances, such as fresh slaked lime or unslaked lime in powder form, chloride of lime, carbolic acid, corrosive sublimate, formalin, formaldehyde gas, and compound solution of cresol possess the power of destroying bacteria with which they come in contact. To make the use of such substances of value, however, the work must be done with the utmost thoroughness.

In the disinfection of stables and premises the following directions should be carefully observed:

1. Sweep ceilings, side walls, stall partitions, floors, and other surfaces until free from cobwebs and dust.

2. Remove all accumulations of filth by scraping, and if woodwork has become decayed, porous, or absorbent, it should be removed, burned, and replaced with new material.

3. If the floor is of earth, remove 4 inches from the surface, and in places where it shows staining with urine a sufficient depth should be scraped to expose fresh earth.

4. All refuse and material from stable and barnyard should be removed to a place not accessible to slaked lime.

5. The entire interior of the stable, especially the feeding troughs and drains, should be saturated with a disinfectant, as a 3 per cent solution of compound solution of cresol (U. S. P.), which would be four ounces of the compound to every gallon of water.

The best method of applying the disinfectant is by means of a strong spray pump, such as those used by orchardists.

This method is efficient in disinfection against most of the contagious and infectious diseases of animals, and should be applied immediately following any outbreak, and, as a matter of precaution, it may be used once or twice yearly.

GOOD ROADS

LOWER EXPENSE TO FARMERS

Good Roads Reduce Greatly Trouble of Transporting Crops to Market
—Cause of Distress.

"Before the war in Europe affected the rates at sea it cost the American farmer more to haul a bushel of wheat nine and a half miles to the railroad station for shipment than it cost the buyer to ship the same bushel of wheat from New York to Liverpool, a distance of 3,000 miles," according to a bulletin issued by the American Highway association. "The average cost of hauling a ton of farm produce, or a ton of anything else, over the average country road is about twenty-three cents a mile; 70 years ago the cost of the same service was 17 cents. The cost of hauling over the railroads is less than one-ninth as much as it was 60 years ago. The cost of hauling by railroad has almost reached the vanishing point; the cost of hauling on the country roads has gone up as the roads have gone down."

"By careful calculation, Logan Waller, director of the United States office of public roads, has reached the conclusion that with wise and equitable road laws and good business management it would be entirely practicable for the people to save themselves on the two items of hauling and administration the enormous sum of $290,000,000 yearly. The railroads in the United States carry about 900,000,000 tons of freight annually, and of this vast tonnage at least 200,000,000 tons are hauled over the country roads to the railroad station or to the canals for shipment. The immense volume of mining products aggregating millions of tons is not included in this estimate, but only the agricultural, forest and miscellaneous products hauled by wagon over the public roads, nor is the cost of hauling back and forth between the farms and the mills.

"The main cause of agricultural distress," says the bulletin, "a subject of perennial alarm to popular favorites, is not so much the wages of the workers or the infertility of the soil or the prices of the products, but the enormous drain of getting the stuff to market, the waste of the roads in the wear and tear of machinery, the sacrifice of teams, the inefficiency of service compelled by impassable highways. Tributary to every market town or railroad station there are what Mr. Page calls 'zones of production.' From the first of these zones all products can be delivered to market at a profit, and from the rest one class of products after another must be eliminated because of the prohibitive cost of hauling, and beyond lie vast territories that cannot be cultivated without the building and constant maintenance of roads suited to whatever traffic there may be developed.

"It has been demonstrated that as the roads from the market towns have been improved there has been a great increase of their business and a corresponding improvement in the condition and opportunities of the rural population, larger prosperity of the individual farmer, greater traffic for the railroads, better supplies and lower prices for the consumer. It does not pay to raise crops that cannot be marketed readily and cheaply. Millions of dollars' worth of field and orchard crops have been utterly wasted because of expensive and inadequate facilities for marketing. This is one of the hard problems with which the United States department of agriculture is trying to deal through the greatest experts in the land, and they have found that the building of good roads is essential to the success of their plans."

$1,000,000,000 Worth of Roads. While talking about preparedness it may be noted that the $1,000,000,000 proposed to be expended would build 250,000 miles of hard-surfaced highways at the rate of $4,000 per miles.

If the government contributed 50 per cent, its billion would cover 500,000 miles.

Use the Road Drag. Use the road drag to get roads into the best possible shape for winter. They may be bad enough at best, but proper work will help greatly.

HIGH GRADE STEERS

PIG GREEN

Bring Forty Dollars More Per Took a Shot At Another Negro on Main Street.

Washington, April 3.—That it pays to raise good stock is illustrated by the experience of two Utah ranchmen who sent their steers to the same market on the same day. Both ran their stock on National Forest range under grazing permits, both used the same amount of range per head of stock, and both paid the same grazing fee. One gave close attention to the selection of his breeding cows and used only high-grade bulls. The other made no effort to improve his herd. The owner of the high-grade stock received $40 per head more for his steers than the owner of the common stock.

On some of the National Forest ranges the stockmen club together, it is reported, and buy high-grade bulls which are owned as community property. Since the administration of the Forests is in the hands of the Department of Agriculture, naturally there is a desire to encourage the use of good breeding stock and to eliminate the scrubs.

We are making a specialty of our flat work department and at the very reasonable prices we charge for this class of work you can't afford the home washing way.

Old English Lotteries.
On October 18, 1826, the last "state lottery" was drawn in England. From the time of Queen Elizabeth lotteries had been common in this country, and at the close of the eighteenth century they had become established by successive acts of parliament and were considered by chancellors of the exchequer as perfectly legitimate means of increasing the revenue. Indeed, at the time they were abolished lotteries were contributing to the state a sum amounting to £300,000 per annum. But it was felt that the government should no longer participate in an undertaking which had such a demoralizing effect on the people, for this legalized gambling impoverished many and diverted attention from the less exciting pursuit of making an honest living.—London Chronicle.

Bethel Girls Steal March On Their Teachers, Saturday

Saturday morning while the dean, Mrs. Eager, and the assistant dean, Miss Lindsay, were getting their "beauty sleep" twelve of the Bethel girls ran away from the college for a days outing in the country.

Various ways for escape had been arranged and after breathlessly treading the planks of Bethel corridors they met at the corner of 17th street and Canton Pike. From there they made their way to the first bridge and cut across to Cox Mill road.

While the "Braves" were enjoying a most bountiful breakfast on the road-side, the "Fraud-Cats" were devouring their usual oatmeal, "sky juice" and "Zip."

Most of the morning was spent visiting friends along the way and about noon they reached the farm of Dr. Wallace. This gentleman they found to be an ideal host and there they remained until the middle of the afternoon.

They had grown a little tired and were beginning to dread their return home when they saw a hay wagon coming, not knowing that it was meant for them. They rushed out and asking the driver to take them to town found that Mr. Rector had sent the wagon for their use.

A most enjoyable day was spent by all and no regrets have been expressed, in spite of the fact that the trip means "30 days" for them. The party consisted of Misses Elizabeth Bassett, Ruth Taylor, Mary Clay Gililand, Francis Liddon, Mary D. Claypoole, Elizabeth Haynes, Florence Brainer, Elizabeth Harris, Madeline Smith, Maynett Hollinsworth, Virginia Glover, and Alice Allen. Misses Eugenia Reeves, Maude Arlington and Jessie Rector joined them later in the day.

BASEBALL SATURDAY

Locals Have Easy Victory Over Earlington High School.

The High School team defeated the Earlington High School by the score of 10 to 2. The Earlington bunch were unable to hit the good pitching of Capt. Higgins and Lackey. All of the local infield were suffering from sore arms and as a result several double plays were missed that should have been gotten. The base-stealing of the locals was the feature of the game, there being 14 bases stolen during the game by High School.

A very poor crowd was out to see the game. Only twenty-four persons paid admission at the gate. The small crowd was probably due to the lack of advertising, but it is hoped a much larger crowd will be out to the next game.

PLEDGED 100 ACRES

The Christian County Strawberry Growers' Association Organizing.

The Christian County Strawberry Growers' Association was organized at Pembroke, Ky., last week with a large enrollment of members who pledged more than one hundred acres of berries. The officers and directors were elected and are all hard at work preparing for the crop which is to be planted within the next two weeks. They are all enthusiastic over the prospects for a very successful business enterprise, and may be depended upon to handle the affairs of the association intelligently and for the very best interests of those whom it represents.

The land in that vicinity is said to be well adapted to the industry and quite an extensive enterprise is expected to be developed.—Farmers Home Journal.

CARD OF THANKS.

Ned Meriwether Camp, U. C. V. Hopkinsville, Ky.

Please accept our sincerest thanks for your kindness shown us in our dark hour of trouble, in the loss of our father, Mr. D. A. Tandy. The love he had for each of his old comrades, makes them all so dear to us, and comforts us the more since we have carried out his last request that he should be buried in his uniform by his U. C. V. brothers. He often said "I wonder who will be the next." God grant that each of you may be with your loved ones for years to come, but when one by one each shall go may the parting be temporary and the meeting eternal.

With our deepest gratitude, we are

Sincerely,
HIS CHILDREN.

Dispensation of Providence.
C. B. Sanders, a negro cotton picker, who lives near the little town of Empire, Ga., woke up at midnight with a yell to find that his warm bed was occupied by a large, fat 'possum. George was badly scared, not knowing at first that it wasn't a rattlesnake or a willowampus. When he got a match and lighted the kerosene lamp he held 'Brier' Possum curled up in his blanket. "I reckon de Lord has sent you, an' here you're gwine ter stay," he remarked as he seized Mr. 'Possum by the tail. Next day George and his family had a feast of baked 'possum.

Now is the time to get your spring and summer wearing apparel Dry-Cleaned and pressed and ready for Easter. We are better prepared than ever to serve you along these lines.

KENTUCKY PUBLIC SERVICE CO.

CONSTRUCTION OF WIRE FENCES FOR FARMS

Simple and Economical Inclosure for Sheep Flock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Under present conditions, says a new publication of the United States department of agriculture, Bulletin No. 321, a wire fence is in many sections of the country the only satisfactory kind for the farmer to construct. Hedgerows, stone walls and rail fences are usually expensive to build, require much labor to maintain, occupy excessive ground space and form breeding places for weeds and insects. For these reasons the government investigators found that in the north central states they are in general being replaced as fast as they become unserviceable, by wire fencing.

The kind and amount of this fencing that a farm should have will be regulated largely by the kind of farming practiced and the size of the farm. The large farm requires proportionately less fence than the small one. For example, a square ten-acre field requires 16 rods of fence per acre, while a square field of one acre requires approximately 50 rods. Moreover, since the crop rotations on a small farm usually require as many fields as those on a larger one, the small farm requires much more division fence in proportion to its acreage than the large one.

To give satisfactory service a farm fence must be able to turn all kinds of animals without injuring them and to be really economical it must possess durability. A short-lived fence that is erected at a low first cost may be a very expensive investment.

The type of wire fence to be selected will depend on local conditions. The bulletin already mentioned, which is a study of conditions in the north central states, contrasts, for example, conditions in western Dakota with those in Ohio. In Dakota the stock are mostly cattle, and large acreages are devoted to permanent pastures. Barbed wire fences which will turn cattle can be constructed much more cheaply than woven wire fences, and under such conditions as prevail in Dakota are almost as satisfactory. The saving of the few steers that may be lost as a result of wire cuts would not compensate for the higher cost of building and maintaining woven wire fences. On the other hand, in Ohio the average farm has about 70 of its 90 acres in crops. Cattle, horses, swine and sheep are pastured and on many farms some part of the land is always given up to pasture in the course of the year. Under these conditions the fence must be a general purpose one for which woven wire is best suited. A barbed-wire fence that would be adequate for all kinds of stock would nearly equal in first cost a good woven wire fence, and the cost of its upkeep would be much greater. In addition there would be the danger of injury to stock. For this reason the farmers of Ohio have mostly abandoned the use of barbed wire.

In constructing a woven wire fence it is better to economize by the elimination of unnecessary wires rather than by the selection of light grade wire.

The initial cost of the heavy wire is greater but its durability is more than sufficient to offset this disadvantage.

The cost of construction, exclusive of the wire itself, is practically the same whether a light grade of woven wire is used or a heavier one, and as the heavier material lasts so much longer, this cost is distributed over a longer time.

The repair costs for the heavier types of fencing are also less. The influence of these facts is shown in the increase in the percentage of heavy wire sold for fencing purposes in the last five years.

On many farms, however, it is not necessary to have close spacing in the fences.

Cattle, sheep and horses are turned more easily than swine, and where no swine are kept the first cost of the fence can be materially reduced by eliminating the wires that are not needed for the other stock.

Where all classes of stock are kept a good general purpose fence is one which has approximately ten fine wires and a total height of about four feet.

The bottom wires are spaced about three inches apart and a strand of barbed wire is stretched across the top to prevent stock from putting their heads over the fence and crowding it down.

The cost of such a fence, constructed from durable materials, including posts, wire and labor, is estimated at 93½ cents a rod.

Its upkeep, including repairs and interest at five per cent on the average value of the investment, will amount to about nine cents a year per rod.

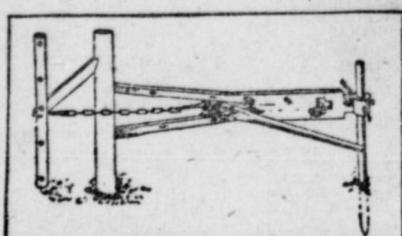

To this should be added the interest on the land which the fence occupies. It has been calculated that each rod of wire fence withdraws about 199 square feet from tillage. This is, however, much less than the land used by hedges, stone walls or rail fences, and on high-priced land is a powerful argument for the adoption of wire fencing.

TREAT DISTEMPER IN HORSES

Formula Given for Treatment of Old and Young Animals—Carefully Avoid Constipation.

(By W. F. SHULER, Oklahoma Agricultural College)

For the treatment of distemper in horses, have prepared this prescription and administer it in tablespoonful doses three times daily to the full grown animals and in teaspoonful doses twice daily to the colts. Powdered nux vomica one part, powdered belladonna leaves one part, powdered chlorate of potash two parts, powdered colchicum root one part pine tar sufficient to make a pasty mass. It may best be given by means of a little wooden paddle, with which the material can be placed on the back of the tongue and it will go directly to the spine.

In cases where abscesses have formed and broken they should be syringed out with an antiseptic solution and painted with tincture of iodine. Be sure that the animals' bowels are in good condition. If there is any tendency to constipation administer a suitable purgative, such as oil-salts or aloes. In cases where the nose and throat seem to be especially affected, place the animal in a small stall, taking a gallon or two of boiling water, add to it a half pint of carbolic acid, and tie the animal so that the head will be directly over the bucket. This will give relief by the inhalation of carbolic acid vapors.

SILAGE REDUCES FEED COST

Cottonseed Meal is Excellent for Putting Quick "Finish" on Lambs—Use an Open Shed.

Silage, fed once or twice daily to lambs being fattened for market, reduces the cost of finishing and adds to the net profit.

Silage should be fed with great care or lambs will "go off their feed" and profits will be reduced.

Shelled corn, clover, hay, cottonseed meal and corn silage makes an excellent ration.

Cottonseed meal is an excellent feed to put a quick "finish" on the lamb.

Lambs have been fed a food far inferior to corn as a lamb ration. Corn alone is better than mixed corn and oats.

An open shed is better, as a rule, for fattening lambs than even a well-ventilated barn, bringing higher prices on account of their superior appearance.

Shearing has no effect on gains or profits, except when shorn the lambs require no dipping. The extra weight of fleece will usually more than balance that expense.

Average Cost of Farm. The average annual value to the farm family of food, fuel, oil and a roof overhead, as reported for several hundred farms studied by the department, was found to be $595.08, of which $421.17 was furnished by the farm.

How Bishop Won Fame.

An amusing story of how he won the title of being the champion coconuts shier among the clergy is told by the bishop of Chelmsford. He informed a gathering of clergymen, says the London Chronicle, that when vicar of Bethnal Green he took a party of workingmen to Epping forest and was there challenged to have a shy at the cocoanuts. He accepted and, paying his sixpence, was given seven balls. Then something happened which would not happen again were he to live to be as old as Methuselah. With those seven balls he knocked off seven cocoanuts. He has lived on the reputation of that feat ever since, and when anyone asked him to have a coconut shy, he said, "You go and knock seven off with seven balls and then I will speak to you."

WEANING THE FOAL IS EASY

Merely Matter of Separation. If Properly Cared for During Summer Months—Time Varies.

If the foal has been properly cared for during the summer months, being fed a little grain in addition to the roughage and dam's milk, weaning time will be merely a matter of separation.

The time of weaning will vary with conditions, but the best rule is to allow it five to seven months, says Farm Stock and Home, as the work of the mare varies from heavy to light, but if possible, don't wean the foal before four months.

The important stage of the youngster's life is now at hand. Separation from the dam must be complete to be satisfactory, and the colt kept in a small lot fenced either with boards or poles. While all colts may not run into the wire, the one that tangles itself in the wire is invariably the most valuable.

The weaning that is most successfully accomplished is the one through which the colt suffers the least setback in growth. If at weaning time the colt can eat its full allowance of grain, two or three pounds of oats or one and one-half pounds of oats and two pounds of ground barley mixed together, with plenty of clean alfalfa or timothy hay, it will continue growing and cease to fret for its dam.

COMMON TAPEWORM IN LAMBS

Not Believed That They Are Responsible for Many Deaths of Animals, Says Western Expert.

(By L. E. NEWSOM, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.)

The common tapeworm of lambs is one that has a habit of getting into the duct leading from the liver, and for this reason many who have examined sheep, dead of disease, have suspected the tapeworm of causing the death. It might be well to state that more than 60 per cent of all western lambs have these tapeworms, as evidenced by finding them on the killing floors at the large packing houses. While it must be admitted that in a few instances they may cause some trouble, yet it is not believed that they are responsible for many of our lamb losses.

During the siege of the Kansas horse disease some man unfamiliar with the normal conditions in horses for the first time found Palisade worms in the abdominal arteries of dead horses. He at once jumped at the conclusion that these worms were responsible for the disease. Had he known that approximately 95 per cent of all horses have these same worms, his reputation might not have suffered.

It is rather common for veterinarians to diagnose tapeworms in dogs, and in about 95 per cent these diagnoses are correct, but that the tapeworms in these animals are responsible for disease is not at all evident, except in a very small percentage of cases. So it is with these tapeworms in lambs. They can always be found in posting any large number of animals, but that they are responsible for any serious disease is evident only in a few cases.

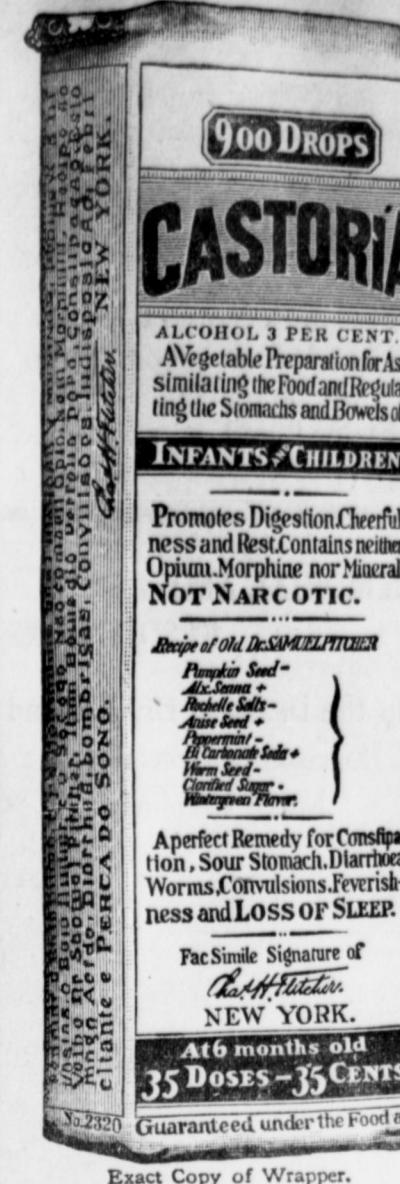

MOLDY SILAGE IS HARMFUL

Complaints Made That Farmers Lose Horses and Mules—Carefully Avoid All Spoiled Stuff.

Every winter farmers complain of losing horses or mules by feeding spoiled silage. Damaged or moldy silage is not first-class feed for any animal. Even cattle should be fed carefully, but the greatest care should be exercised with horses and colts. See that no moldy stuff gets into their feed boxes and that none is left there from one feed to another to spoil.

Good silage does not hurt horses, but remember the mold that sometimes occurs in spots may kill them at any time.

Winter Horse Feeds.
Do not try to carry the horse through the winter on a hay or straw ration. Such feeding induces indigestion.

MEMORIAL AND RESOLUTIONS

On the Death of Dr. Edmund Harrison in Greensboro, North Carolina.

Nora Kridel has sworn vengeance upon Hennion and his body-guard of scoundrels, for the wrongs of her father. Joe Garth, deeply in love with Nora, gladly accepts the mission of help. Hennion, in turn, enlists the leadership of the famous Simmons, who, because of facial disfigurement, constantly wears a grey mask. Garth also dons a great mask to impersonate him, and with Nora, works into the confidence of the Hennions. Then follows a series of thrilling and gripping episodes, in which their lives are endangered many times, such as when the automobile leaps off the slip into the river, carrying passengers with it. Eventually, the vow is accomplished, and Garth and Nora find their reward in the true love which each feels for the other.

Got the Wrong Tube.

After a busy day of golfing and an evening of automobiling, Jane's skin was irritated from the combined effects of sun and wind, so she liberally "cold-creamed" her face and hands and settled herself for a good night's rest. In a few minutes her face began to feel stiff and drawn. "At last," she thought, "the expected has happened. I have paralysis." Her nervousness increased when her fingers became unmanageable and her skin began to crack and snap. She hastily turned on the light and found her face alarmingly waxy and shiny. What could be the cause? Finally she rushed to the tube of cold cream. It was labeled "Library Paste."—Youth's Companion.

Cathedral Many Centuries Old.
Notre Dame cathedral in Paris was erected in the year 528 by Childebert, and afterwards demolished, the same site being used for the present building, which was begun in 1163 and finished in 1351. Alexander III laid the foundation stone, the first mass being celebrated by the patriarch Heraclius. The grand old building has been sorely beset by many dangers, and has witnessed many strange and stirring scenes.
